Terrorized by Black Hand.

Government secret service detectives are on the track of the Black Hand Society of Richmond, whose alleged members have terrorized the homes of rominent Italian citizens in that city. t is said this society has succeeded by threats of assassination in extorting a least $1,500 out of Italians in Lynchburg and other Virginia cities.

The refusal of Joseph Marsala, a well-known Italian merchant of Richmond, to give up $500 under threat of assassination is only one of several such cases brought to light. The publicity he gave to the threatening communications he received emboldened others of his country nen whose lives had been threatened to speak out.

Louis Correiri, liquor dealer in west Broad street, was ordered to leave $1,000 in a designated place near the old fair grounds and death was named as the penalty of failure to comply. He was warned not to communicate with the police, and was told in the mes-sage that if he did so he would be down in the street. A stiletto sage of death and the threat that his family would be wiped out and his house burned because of this bad treatment of his countrymen. Becoming thoroughly alarmed. Correiti, submitted the message and his fears to some of his intimate friends. They advised him to lay the matter before the Secret Service at Washington, and this was done. The communications were all written in Italian and bear the signature Garibaldi.

received and asked permission to carry a pistol. The last note translated into English, reads as follows:

"All this day you are marked by the society and it will attend to you unless you treat your own nationality better.'

The boat was dragged for about five miles before the fish became tired, and after a struggle which kept the men busy working to keep their boat from being overturned they were able to draw the fish to the side of the boat and kill it. The body of the fish is now on exhibition in the offices of the State Oyster Commission, at New Orleans.
